DAVE WALL

Booze law a mixed blessing

Santa Claus staggered into town three weeks early this year, but his Christmas present, a boon for consumers, may prove a bust for small, local, liquor retailers.

Yesterday's startling decision by the state's Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board striking down 37 years of fixed retail liquor prices plastered smiles on consumers' faces, but left "mom and pop" retailers distraught, angry — and in a fighting mood.

"The state, the courts, everybody else is favoring the big corporations," fumed Quart House Liquors' Ed Alves. "The big guys," he gestures, "that buy by the carload."

Defenders of the depression era law say it was enacted to preserve local "mom and pop" stores from going under; to give them a competitive balance with burgeoning chain stores.

Critics claim it amounts to an $81 million a year subsidation that goes mainly to wholesalers, who, without competition, simply charge what the market will bear.

New rules for wine, page 7

"But we'll find a way," vows Alves from his Livermore storefront not two blocks away from a mammoth Safeway.

He's already been talking to "five or six" other retailers in town about forming an association or "co-op" to give them competitive buying power.

"We could do it valley wide," he adds.

But he hasn't abandoned sympathy for his customers.

"From the consumers end of it, I wish there was something we could do for them. The consumer, he pays for everything."

Mori's ideas

Rescue the taxpayer

PLEASANTON — Cities in the future may be charging a local income tax administered by the state and use the money to give a property tax break to the local residents, Assemblyman Floyd Mori told an informal luncheon meeting with local public officials yesterday.

The idea of a local income tax was more of a hope than a prediction, but it is one possibility in what the legislature considers the very necessary area of local property tax reform, said Mori.

But whether or not a local income tax ever comes about, one thing is certain, said Mori there ought to be tax relief for low income persons, including senior citizens, so they don't lose their homes in the face of escalating assessed valuations on their property.

Mori, an economist who used to teach at Chabot College, said he wants an equitable redistribution of the tax burden. One step toward that is to give tax relief to anyone below a certain income, said Mori. It's already done with senior citizens homeowner property tax exemptions, he noted, and that concept would be extended to all in the lower income ranges.

Mori favors this idea, which has several applications, including the circuit - breaker concept. This means that if your taxes are above a certain percentage of your income, you get property tax relief.

Another idea is to have property tax rate limits, similar to those imposed by SB 90, but Mori doesn't go along with that idea. However, he does feel there is a need for the state to control local spending in some ways.

Two local officials from Mori's district in attendance at the luncheon yesterday disagreed. Supervisor - elect Valerie Raymond said that would be the easy way out for local officials who could point to the state - imposed limit. Instead local officials should be in a situation where they make hard decisions about which spending is necessary. If they do something the taxpayers don't like, they will hear about it from their local electorate, said Raymond.

Hayward Council Member Gail Steele agreed. She noted that the Hayward City Council almost was recalled when it tried to impose a utilities tax on that city a few years ago.

Mori is glad to see that Governor Jerry Brown also favors the principle of giving tax breaks to those hard - pressed to pay property taxes.

However, Mori does not agree with the governor about splitting the tax assessment roll so that assessments are made on one basis for business and industrial property and on another for the homeowner.

Splitting the rolls that way is inequitable and may start a trend to split it further which will create all kinds of tax loopholes, said Mori.

Raymond wondered whether a state - collected income tax for cities might be manipulated so that some day the state starts using much of it for its own purposes. Mori, a former city council member and mayor of Pleasanton, said he sees the state purely as a tax collector for the cities if that income tax plan comes about.

Local officials present, including Pleasanton Mayor Robert Philcox, VCSD Board President Ron Hyde and Livermore Assistant City Manager Don Bradley, agreed on the need to have closer rapport with Mori's office on property tax reform and any other money issues affecting local jurisdictions. Mori said he already has a newsletter and will try to bolster that despite a limited staff. He liked Raymond's idea that he hold similar informal luncheons perhaps every three months with local officials.

Firefighters get fair deal, says mayor

PLEASANTON — Firefighters are getting a fair shake when it comes to council decisions, says Mayor Robert Philcox.

The mayor responded in a letter yesterday to firefighter' allegations that they were bypassed for input about the authorization of hiring for the fire department.

Union president Dennis Laurence had charged that Philcox would not recognize him at Monday night's council meeting wen he wanted to make a presentation about the supposed urgency of hiring two more firefighters instead of an assistant chief.

Philcox said yesterday that the city council adopted most of what the firefighters have asked for in the past, namely hiring of a permanent fire chief and transferring captains from regular office hours to shift duty.

"Was the union satisfied," Philcox asked in a letter to the editor delivered last night. "No. Now they want less administration. We had less administration a few years ago before the public safety concept (was adopted by the city council). The union had pretty good control of the department. We had problems then, too, and I'm not ready to return to that situation."

Philcox claimed the firefighters' union is the only city employee group which wants special treatment from the council. He noted that the firemen's version of what the city ought to do for fire department staffing had been presented in writing to the council.

"Time and again we are faced with the union expressing their views and if council doesn't concur the assumption is that council made up their minds before hearing union input. The fact is that there is a genuine disagreement as to how a department of public safety should be administered. It's that simple," said Philcox.

"The firefighters union has become a political group. They lobby. They endorse and support city council candidates. They request newspaper and TV coverage to express their views and their dissatisfaction with the administration. That's their choice and if they want to do that, it's up to them. As far as my office is concerned, however, they will be treated equally with other employee groups and will not receive special privileges," said Philcox.

First grade test scores way up in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON— First graders of 1975-76 at five Pleasanton schools made significant improvement on standardized reading tests, according to results and analysis presented to school board members Wednesday.

The state percentile rankings on reading tests show that Fairlands School first graders, for example, scored in the 73rd percentile compared to 52nd percentile ranking the previous year. This means that Fairlands first graders of 1975-76 scored better than 73 per cent of all other first graders in the state.

Rankings on the readings tests showed similar positive gains for first graders at Alisal (79th to 84th percentile), Vintage Hills (77th to 90th percentile), Valley View (68th to 79th percentile) and Walnut Grove (82nd to 90th percentile).

Alisal second graders of 1975-76 also moved up in state percentile rankings from the previous year (from 83rd to 88th) as did Valley View (75th to 87th).

But second - graders at Vintage Hills were reported at the 73rd percentile after second - graders the year before scored at the 96th percentile. Fairlands second - rades had a 71st percentile rank, Walnut Grove 75.

The Fairlands grade two (71) and grade three (70) percentile rankings are well within the comparison or expectancy band (55-78 and 55-76, respectively), as derived from socio - economic factors.

Vintage Hills grade two was below the comparison band (76-96) and grade three in the middle (85th percentile rank, comparison band of 79-97).

Walnut Grove second and third graders of 75-76 fell just below their respective comparison bands of 80-94 and 83-96.

Sixth graders tested on reading, written expression, spelling and mathematics scored well within the comparison band— 78, 83, 77 and 77, respectively. Again, this indicates they performed better than that percentage of sixth graders throughout the state.

Pleasanton School sixth graders fell slightly below the band in spelling and mathematics while Harvest Park sixth graders were well up in the comparison range on all four tests.

The state tests review and accompanying analysis was given by Gloria Jones and Dr. David Carlisle of the district staff.

Murray president will step down

Murray School District board president Ted Woy will not seek another term when the present one is concluded in March of 1977.

Woy is senior member of the board in point of service having intially been elected to replace Edward B. Olheiser 12 years ago.

San Ramon Valley Unified School District board president Harold Zuckerman, principal of Fremont High School in Oakland, told The Times he would probably seek another term in March. He has served 5½ years.

Fellow board members Virginia Jouris and Joseph DeHope, whose terms are also up in March, were not immediately available for comment on their plans concerning reelection.

Linda Jeffery of the Murray board, elected to complete the unexpired term of Joanne Bascom, said she had not decided as yet but was leaning toward seeking another term as "some projects I have been working with remain to be completed."

Wally Decker, president of the Amador Valley Joint High School District board, told The Times more than a week ago he would retire from the board.

Pipeline— it costs less to pay fine

A vexing problem from any perspective, the proposed Valley wastewater disposal pipeline has raised yet another intriguing question.

Should we build the thing at all?

Robert Philcox, chairman of the Livermore - Amador Valley MWater Management Agency, believes so. But he produced some interesting figures that may raise doubts.

Engineers Wednesday night said the project's total cost had been recaluculated from $28 million to $44.2 million, a 60 per cent increase.

Government officials, meanwhile, have said that fines of up to $6,000 a day could be levied if the pipeline is not completed soon.

So Philcox took out his pocket calculator and figured that a $6,000 a day fine, imposed 365 days of the year for 20 years (the life of the revenue bonds that would pay for the project), would total $43.8 million.

A savings of $400,000 would thus be realized if the pipeline was not constructed.

VALLEY NEWS BRIEFS

Dump those papers

Drop used newspapers into a bin in Dublin located at the corner of the parking lot on Alcosta Boulevard and Village Parkway Saturday, Dec. 4.

Newspapers will be recycled by members of Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 704 who will attend the bin from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For pickup service call 846-4269 after 6 p.m.

City sewer ban eyed

Livermore officials continue to seek a way of convincing the state's regional water quality control board not to plug future valley growth with a sewer hookup ban because of pollution violations.

Unless valley agencies can show they really intend to build a pipeline or clean up the water they now dump into streams, a regional board hearing in Pleasanton Dec. 9 may pass a "tsk, tsk" along to its parent organization in Oakland.

City council members met in special session Wednesday afternoon to review, page by page, the fifth draft of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency joint powers agreement.

Smog man returns

Dr. Norman A. Bonner, a research chemist at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and a Livermore resident, has been reappointed to the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's Advisory Council.

Dr. Bonner will join 10 incumbents and nine new members on the board. Appointments become effective Jan. 1.

BAAPCD officials received 126 applications for the 20 posts.

Christmas contest open

The Third Annual Christmas Home Decorating Contest, conducted by the Pleasanton Jaycees, is open to all residents of the community with entries being accepted from now through Saturday, Dec. 18.

Cash prizes of $75, first, $50, second, and $25, third, will be awarded to those adjudged as having the best home displays. A Committee of Jaycees will judge home displays entered between 7 and 9 p.m. on Dec. 20 and 21.

Entrants should send in their name and address on a postcard to Pleasanton Jaycees, 10 W.Neal St., Pleasanton 94566, attention Christmas Home Decorating Contest.

Home displays should not be elaborate and may include lighting. A manger scene or humourous slant on Christmas, utilizing standard Yule season symbols such as Santa Claus and reindeer, would be appropriate.

Don Grant is chairman of the contest.

Granada lineman honor

Larry Burke, Granada High School's rugged linebacker, has honors coming from two directions today.

The two-time all-East Bay Athletic League player was named as one of six unanimous choices to the 26-player all-East Bay regional dream team by a group of writers meeting in Walnut Creek.

On top of that came the Football Foundation Hall of Fame's Alameda County lineman of the year award, announced in San Leandro.

The latter award is a scholarship - athletics award placing equal emphasis on classroom work and athletic endeavor.

The all-East Bay football vote contained a contradiction — at least to the coaches who selected the all-EBAL team last month. Dublin running back Jim Boulware, who rolled up 1631 yards but did not make the all-league team, was selected to the first team.

Eight other valley players made either first or second team.

Youth arrested, admits to series of burglaries

LIVERMORE — A 16-year-old Fremont youth caught riding a hot-wired motorcycle with no driver's license or registration admitted to several burglaries Tuesday, police reported.

According to reports, the youth told police he hid in a back room of Tom's Chevron Service at 1200 Portola Ave. and waited until attendents closed for the night. He then got keys from a counter and opened a safe, taking $73, police reported.

The suspect climbed over a wall, leaving the station locked from the inside, police said.

He also confessed to burglaries on Elizabeth Court, Yosemite Drive, El Caminito, Seminole Drive and the Palace Motel.

He was booked on suspicion of being a runaway and for investigation of burglary.

Stolen equipment turned over to police

LIVERMORE — A Nightengale Street resident turned over to police an arc welder he said was stolen in San Jose by his brother, police reported.

The man said his brother had asked to store the equipment there because he didn't have access to a garage while living in Fremont. He later said he had taken the equipment from a stolen truck, police reported.

A quantity of tools also allegedly taken from the truck had been removed before police were contacted.

The investigation is continuing.

Radial tires on rental cars slashedby vandals

LIVERMORE — Fifteen new radial tires mounted on rental cars at Hertz Rentals, 2008 First St., were slashed by vandals recently, police reported.

Manager Gerald Bireley of Livermore told police the tires had been slashed along the sidewalls. They were valued at $475.

There are no suspects.

Tools stolen from East Avenue Elementary School

LIVERMORE — Burglars took approximately $450 in automative tools from the machine shop at East Avenue Elementary School recently, police reported.

Police said burglars apparently broke a window to gain entry. Intercom phones had been ripped from the walls and their internal parts removed.

There are no suspects.

Gold nugget, $5 gold piece taken from home

PLEASANTON — Burglars apparently stole a gold nugget and an early 1900's $5 gold piece from a Pleasanton home recently, police report.

Margaret Simmons, a Pleasanton police clerk, reported the burglary Wednesday. There were no signs of forced entry to her home.

There are no suspects.

Measure U was a bust from start

If voters Nov. 2 had passed Measure U, authorizing $8.4 million in local costs to build a wastewater disposal pipeline, the project would not have been built because of a 60 per cent increase in overall costs.

Robert Philcox, chairman of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), said yesterday that the increased costs figures would have forced the board to return to voters in March and ask for an additional $5.2 million. No construction whatever could have occurred without the additional approval, he noted.

Representatives of John Carollo engineers told a grim LAVWMA board Wednesday night that the project's cost had climbed from a previous estimate of $27.7 million to $44.2, a 60 per cent increase.

The Valley's share jumped from $8.4 to $13.5, a 62 per cent hike.

LAVWMA directors reacted with shock, anger and frustration at news of the cost hikes. A special meeting will be held tonight at 6 at the Pleasanton Justice Court, 30 West Angela St., at which time the board will consider dismissing Carollo engineers and hiring another firm.

In reaction to the cost increases, state planners met yesterday to determine if the presently - outlined project is still the most "cost - effective" — i.e., it is the best project at the price.

The board's options are narrowing quickly due to the time constraints and engineering problems.

Surrender in Livermore court

LIVERMORE — A Fremont man walked into municipal court here Tuesday to surrender on a warrent charging him with possessing stolen goods.

Harry Edward Barrow, 33, pleaded not guilty of taking an arc welder, tanks and tools from the W. H. Ebert Corporation, a San Jose construction company.

Barrow's brother, Melvin Douglas Barrow of 690 Nightingale St., Livermore, told police his brother stored the material in his garage.

The defendent is scheduled to appear Dec. 15 for a preliminary hearing.

In other court action:

— Christine Ann Davison, 22, an incoming inmate at Santa Rita prison, was arraigned on charges she assaulted four deputies during admittance procedures.

Sheriff deputy reports indicated Davison allegedly banged her handcuffs on the holding cell door, stopped up a sink and turned on a faucet in an attempt to flood the area.

While in the fingerprint room, she reportedly grabbed a fingerprint roller and started "fighting violently, kicking and scratching" deputies, the report said. several deputies received minor cuts and scratches.

Davison also allegedly held onto two deputies, threw her feet up and kicked out two window panes. She was taken to Fairmont Hospital for treatment of cuts on her legs.

She was in Santa Rita after an arrest involving drinking in or near a vehicle.

— Patrick LaBel, 39, of 1009 Murrieta Blvd., Livermore, was arraigned Monday on charges of passing seven bad checks, totalling $187, at the Chartreuse Moose Bar in Dublin.

overall 25 per cent markup over the fixed wholesale price, those interviewed agreed, with the spread varying among hard spirits, wine and beer.

Smirnoff 100-proof vodka, for example, wholesales to all retailers at $4.62 a fifth, and sits on a shelf at $6.10 — a 32 per cent markup.

Local vintner Joe Concannon's famed 1971 Petite Sirah is sold by wholesalers — not the winery — at $3.33 a bottle, but retails for $5 minimum — a 50 per cent markup.

What beer lacks in return, it makes up for in quantity.

Dave Wall of Pleasanton's Cellar Liquors is reflective and unnerved by the decision.

"I want to see what happens in a day or so. See what the others are thinking," he says. "It could very well kill the 'mom and pop' liquor store."

He fears the chain stores, with their volume buys, will go to the "absolute minimum" on spirits. "And from past history, we know the people — consumers — will ultimately loose."

Earl Purcell of Dublin has been in the "package store" business for about 13 months. The ABC ruling came down like that proverbial ton of bricks.

"There's no doubt about it," he says, "the small places can't compete with the big ones."

He expects the marketing giants to use liquor as a "loss leader" like cigarettes: selling them at cost to attract customers.

"I don't see any way I can fight it," he says. "I've been thinking about selling."

Liquor licenses are expensive. They range up to $50,000 in Contra Costa County. If many retailers opt to bail out, the flooded market could sink their major investment.

— by Ron Rodriguez

Don't expect liquor war yet

First the bad news.

The bottom has not fallen out of the price of liquor. Retailers are expected to maintain the present fixed price on spirits in all their many forms.

Yesterday's state Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board ruling that strikes down 37 years of industry established prices is being appealed by the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

Pending the appeal, the ABC "will continue to enforce the fair trade provisions" of the act.

"Prospects of a price war at this time probably are minimal," said retailers' association spokeswoman Judy Newberry. "I expect most retailers in the state will abide by fair trade laws now in effect."

Representatives of Lucky and Safeway stores, two of the Bay Area's largest retailers, said their companies are taking a "wait and see" attitude as the appeal winds its way to the state supreme court.

But a Lucky spokesman said his firm "definitely will be competitive" if the ruling is upheld.

An attorney for the wholesalers association said he will not seek an injunction because the appeal automatically keeps the law in effect. Sante Quattrin said he expects the 37-year-old statute to be upheld.

Now for the good news, at least for teetotaling consumers: milk may be next.

Impressions of Russians related to Exchange Club

Dr. Charles Brydon, assistant dean of instruction at Chabot College Valley Campus, has some observations on his recent trip to the Soviet Union that may not parallel the offtimes "rosy" commentaries emanating from "Mother Russia."

Though he and his wife were in Leningrad for a brief period, 10 days, Brydon did make a host of observations as relayed to the Amador-Livermore Valley Exchange Club yesterday.

One would get the impression that the Russians may have skipped directly from your basic field machines to Sputnik.

Take the Leningrad buses — please! — for example.

Brydon describes them as rather ancient and without mufflers.

"The buses come along one after another with no mufflers — the noise is deafening," comments Brydon. But the department stores are apparently very orderly, though the prices may make the average American housewife wince.

Brydon noted in the stores he and his wife went into the shoes were placed in a roped-off area ..." and there were 50 or 60 people waiting to rummage through the shoes." He describes the stock as comparable to the $3.95 "specials" in stores here but costing $35 to $40 in Leningrad.

Chewing gum is BIG in Leningrad. In fact, there's even what amounts to a black market for the product.

Brydon also described construction and restoration of buildings ala Leningrad-method.

Leningrad was the site of the Winter Palace, an adjunct of which is being rebuilt via the brick-by-brick method.

Brydon compared this style with the systematic organization and pre-made materials used in some phases of the Valley Campus construction.

Leningrad night life is somewhat short of that in Las Vegas — or Alviso possibly. However, if you like the Bolshoi Ballet (If it's in town) or the circus, you'll enjoy yourself.

Brydon observes that Leningradites L-O-V-E their "wod-ka."

He also noted that the Soviets do not like you taking souvenir Rubles out of the country, asking penetrating or potentially embarrassing questions or meandering about without an Intourist guide.

The Brydons made all travel arrangements themselves and spent a total of six weeks, much of the time in Scandinavian countries.

Memorial scholarship increased

The Tom Hart Memorial Scholarship Committee has announced an increase in the scholarship to $1,000.

This year will be the third presentation of the scholarship honoring the revered educator. Previous recipients are Bob Vierra and Jeffery Hellinga. With accrued interests and continuing contributions, the total fund now amounts to $7,296.

The committee still welcomes sponsoring members and other contributions. Both are tax deductible.

Bob Hagler has been appointed chairman of the fund - raising social with Bob Scruggs assisting. A tentative date has been set for March 19 and will be similar to the successful buffet dinner dance held last year. Organizations are invited to contact either chairman or any committee member if interested in contributing items for door prizes.

Amador team set to debate

Amador Valley High School will be represented at a debate tournament to be conducted by Mission San Jose and Abraham Lincoln High Schools Saturday, Dec. 11.

Birth control seminar

Natural Birth Control is the subject of the Dec. 11 workshop taught by Marilee Kernis and sponsored by the Anthropos Foundation.

The workshop will be held at the Anthropos headquarters, 1814 Catalina Ct. in Livermore. It is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. and end at 6 p.m. The fee is $15 per person, $2 per couple.

Marilee will teach four methods of natural birth control: the astrological-fertility cycle with refers to the angle of the sun and moon at the woman's time of birth; the rhythm method, which depends on knowing approximately when a woman's ovulation occurs; the ovulation method, in which changes in mucus color and texture indicate the progress of the fertility cycle; and lunaception, which is based on the fact that a woman's fertile time coincides with cycles of the moon.

Marilee has been using the methods for three years and is very enthusiastic about them. She feels this method of contraception promotes a woman's awareness of her body and the cycles. Call 443-1818 for further information.

VFW

Members of the Livermore V.F.W. Auxiliary 7265 will celebrate the Christmas season with a luncheon party at the Holiday Inn on Dec. 4. The social hour will begin at 12:30 p.m. where members will exchange gifts limited to $2 or less.

Dublin-SR Newcomers

'We really try to make people feel at home," says Colleen Sabbe of San Ramon, recently-elected president of the Livermore Newcomers Club, which currently numbers 100 members.

"We all have experienced moving," Colleen continues, "so we try to arrange activities to help women get out of the house and talk to someone besides the kids."

Colleen has lived in San Ramon for a year and a half, and served as editor of the club's newsletter and as secretary before tackling the post of president. A believer in community service, Colleen declares the club goes out of its way to help new arrivals in town make the first contact.

"People are hesistant to come to an event all alone, so our hospitality committee will arrange transportation for newcomers," explains Colleen. "In an emergency, club members have assisted with child care, housecleaning or cooking. We keep tabs on everyone the group, and take the place of families which may be many miles away."

According to Colleen, the club is especially appealing to young mothers with preschool children and retired women, both examples of persons with limited outside contacts. However, club members include women of all ages.

Club activities include a monthly luncheon meeting, monthly orientation coffee, special interest groups in bowling, bridge and crafts, and a supper club.

"I've moved five times in six years and I have learned that this is the best way to beat loneliness," concludes Colleen. "My phone is always ringing." She'll introduce you to the club and give you a warm welcome at 828-7372.

About commissions . . .

An information booklet about the structure of the county boards to which the public is appointed is now available at all Alameda County branch libraries, college campuses, high schools and the YWCA.

The booklet has been prepared by the Alameda County Commission on the Status of Women.

Those interested in serving on a commission or board for the county may call the office of the Commission on the Status of Women at 874-7807 and request a Talent Bank form. This form enables the commission to contact those persons when vacancies occur in county commissions or boards.

Jack Anderson attacks FBI, CIA

Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson zeroed in on the multimillions in profits, with little or no taxes paid, made by major oil companies and Ford Motor Company and the plight of poor people in a presentation Tuesday night at College of Marin in Kentfield.

Author of the syndicated Washington Merry Go-Round column, purportedly read by upwards of 45 million people, Anderson split his 75-minute talk into two phases: Freedom of the press and alleged Nixon Administration efforts to silence him.

A former Mormon missionary and a father of nine children, Anderson opened by commenting "how disturbing it is that so many people believe the press deliberately distorts the truth."

Anderson said he tells his reporters (He has a corps of "leg" men who gather information for his articles) "I want the facts as they are, not as you want them."

Yet a few moments later Anderson added the classic clause, "I'm not going to claim we always get the facts ... but we try."

With great inflection and some gesturing, Anderson tweaked the establishment nose by saying, "I've never known a governmental agency that called a press conference to detail their mistakes or oversights."

Anderson then launched into a lengthy discourse on his travails as a result of continuing expose-type articles on the Nixon Administration and the Watergate break-in.

"I don't think we've seen all of Watergate. Oh, we pulled the tail of the elephant out into the open. But we haven't see it all."

Sidetracking for a minute, Anderson mentioned he had testified in Fresno a couple of months ago in the case of the four Fresno Bee reporters who were jailed for not revealing their sources on a sensitive court matter.

"You know, a couple of the town's leading citizens were put in the slammer ... put there without a trial ... it was an establishment judge," Anderson railed while glowering at his audience.

"If we're going to have to rely on 'official' sources for our news," Anderson said, "we're going to be just like the Russians reading the official government line in Pravda."

Anderson claimed the White House spent three months investigating him, then it was turned over to the "plumbers," a group allegedly detailed to weed out enemies of the administration.

"When that didn't work," continued Anderson, (Nixon aide) Haldeman told the FBI to investigate me ... to find a crime if necessary."

"I knew they wanted to jail me for printing something from supposedly secret documents so I had the foresight to send my aide Les Whitten out on the street and they arrested him. Eight FBI agents pounced on him, handcuffed him and took him to the clink. But we got him out in a couple hours."

Anderson then continued by describing "Operation Mudhen," allegedly carried out by the Counter Intelligence Agency to discredit him and his leg men. Anderson said the CIA gave him the code name of "Brandy," Whitten "Cordial" and CIA operatives "Sugar." Headquarters was referred to as the "Nest."

He said 18 radio cars were assigned to tail him and his reporters around the clock. Anderson showed the audience Xerox copies of photos he says the CIA took of CBS Television taking pictures of him for use on the show "60 Minutes."

Anderson described other "comic opera" surveillance procedures that netted, he claimed, "the identity of my secretary's boyfriend ... that's what the taxpayers got for an expenditure of a quarter-of-a million dollars of their money."

Anderson also commented on a host of other subjects:

On his favorite politician: Alben Barkley, "The Veep," "Somehow we've never come to calling any of our vice presidents since by the affectionate term 'Veep'....at least not Spiro Agnew."

Economists: "There's a group up in Canada who don't want to speak the English language, they're called Separatists. But, hell, we've got a group right here in the United States who can't speak English — they're called economists."

Welfare: "I don't believe in welfare. I think if you're physically able I'd rather give you a shovel. If we're going to give welfare, I'd rather give it to the poor than the rich."

Nixon: "There was a statement out of San Clemente about three months ago saying the president had sovereign powers. When he was sworn in and put his hand on the Bible he should have read it. For if he did he'd know that the president is not the sovereign, the people are. The president is our servant."

Labelling guidelines

Vintners like new controls

By MICHAEL RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- The federal government, like growing numbers of people around the country, is taking an increasing interest in wine — and in the United States that means mostly California wine.

First there were now-dormant ideas for ingredient labeling, right down to the yeast used in fermentation. Then came proposals, since discarded, for individual states to handle geographic designations for wine names — sending shivers through many wine people concerned over the possibility of a Napa Valley wine from Alabama or Alaska.

Now the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has come up with a new set of proposals which have caught California winemakers, who produce an estimated 90 per cent of the wine made in this country, by surprise.

"I was shocked," said David Stare, owner of tiny Dry Creek Vineyards and president of the Sonoma County Winegrowers Association.

"The thing that surprised me so much," Stare added, "is that it's a relatively imaginative idea. Whoever came up with this idea should be congratulated."

The proposal calls for a government seal to designate wines made under tighter new regulations.

It would specify geographic winegrowing areas and the percentages of grape types necessary to carry the grape name on the label.

While it is similar to centuries-old European traditions, the government insists it is a different concept since it doesn't require certain grapes to be grown in certain areas. And unlike the systems used in France, Germany and Italy, the seal would be voluntary.

ATF says it considers the proposals "only transitional" — something that could grow into an overall setup like Europe, which has had centuries to develop systems of appellations, or controls.

Under the proposal, there would be only minimal changes in non-seal wines, which account for the vast bulk of the more than one-quarter billion gallons California ships each year. Seal wines constitute around 10 to 15 per cent of all wine made in California, and many of the smaller wineries feel they could comply with little or no change.

The government strongly maintains that absolutely no claim of quality is intended for the seal. It is only meant to insure the consumer is getting more accurate information — and more of it.

ATF said in its published proposals that it "is in no position to guarantee such a subjective thing as 'wine quality;' all we can do is try to promote informative and truthful labeling, and leave it to the consumer ... to make the final decision to whether a wine is good or bad, or worth the price asked for it."

That contention is disputed by winemaker August Sebastiani and others.

"They don't have to make quality claims, the fact you allow the use of a government seal implies quality," said Sebastiani. "How do you get to 200 million people and tell them it doesn't mean quality?

"You could plant grapes out on some alkalai mudflats, build a winery there, make wine that is 'estate bottled' and get the seal and it would be terrible — but it would still have that seal," he added.

The proposals are far from law. They must first go through public hearings — which have been postponed from December to Feb 10. at the request of the California Wine Institute — and final laws are usually published about one year ahead of their effective date.

Stare said winemakers in Sonoma County, which has a blend of large and small wineries, "probably line up as you'd expect — smaller ones like ourselves are usually in favor and the large ones (such as Sebastiani) look at it askance.

Some winemakrs had expected the new proposal to require the varietal content, the amount of a certain grape needed to put the name of that grape on the label, to be increased from 51 per cent to perhaps 60 to 70 per cent. Instead, it remains at 51 per cent for non-seal wines but is boosted to 85 per cent for seal wines.

"I don't think it goes far enough. It's sort of like grading eggs. Are we going to have Grade A, Grade Double AA and so on?" asked Lou Foppiano, whose family runs a Sonoma County winery.

Most concern centers around the seal vs. non-seal wines.

"It makes non-seal wines lower through innuendo," said Dr. Richard Peterson, president of Monterey Vineyards.

"I'm afraid it's going to mean you have first-and second-class citizens without anyone knowing it," said a spokesman for United Vintners. "We're kind of in the middle because we own Inglenook, which estate bottles its Napa Valley wines, and Italian Swiss Colony ... We can only hope the consumer taste will tell."

How will consumers react?

"When you see a government see a government seal on a piece of beef you know the government has checked it," Sebastiani said. "But this seal would mislead consumers — there's no tasting or testing. I gives people with a seal an edge without any assurances the seal means a damn thing."

Ed Mirassou, whose family runs one of California's best known premium wineries, greeted the proposals with enthusiasm.

"It gives a real opportunity for upgrading labeling and making better classes of wine without being forced into it automatically," he said.

"The seal is not supposed to be a seal of quality. That is going to take years to prove. It may just prove to the public that there's more information on the label."

In the end, said Mirassou, "The most important thing is what's in the bottle — how it tastes. And in our mind we think the most important thing on the label is our name."

Council vs. planners

Ice house back on the hot seat

The Main Street ice house controversy was aired again this week by the planning commission and city council, this time in a Monday morning quarterbacking session as part of a series of issues on which the two boards disagreed.

The city council approved the ice house in the Pleasanton Liquors parking lot on a 3-2 vote. The planning commission didn't like the ice house, also on a split vote and the face - to - face dialogue last Monday night reveaied a variety of opinions which embraced how Main Street should look.

Planning Commissioner Walt Wood said the ice house, which has a clear shake exterior and stands near the edge of the liquor store parking lot, "adds nothing to downtown Pleasanton. It's not a service which is needed there."

Commissioner Dave Shepherd said he realized that taste is subjective, but "that kind of structure doesn't fit in with what we are trying to do in the downtown."

Defending the city council's action in allowing the ice house, Councilman Ken Mercer said, "I'd rather have an ice house downtown than those pink - striped litter containers or litter boxes that say 'litter boxes' on them. In my opinion, the architectural style is not established there. We have a Mexican restaurant next to old city hall next to Franklin Savings. There is no one theme as in Monterey.

"We're still in the embryonic stage downtown," said Mercer. "Ultimately the downtown will be unique. Why not have a unique ice house?" He added that with approval of the ice house the city was able to require the liquor store owner to improve the sidewalk and curb at the parking lot, something which the city engineering department felt has been necessary for some time.

"But where did the ice house add to the Main Street," asked Wood. "We have a small town atmosphere, whether you talk about a Mexican restaurant or a French restaurant or whatever era."

"You ask what does it add," said Mayor Robert Philcox. "It doesn't detract from anything. I look at it every day." Philcox is an officer of First National Bank across the street from the liquor store.

On the subject of downtown design, Commissioner Bill Jamieson observed that the city planning staff a few years ago drew up a suggested aesthetic plan for the downtown. He wondered whether any downtown developers ever come in and look at it to get a notion of what the city wants in the way of heritage design.

"That plan was brought up during redevelopment," said Vice - mayor Joyce LeClaire, "and look what happened to that."

Aquatic classes launched

PLEASANTON — The aquatic center, 4455 Black Ave., begins the last set of water classes before the holiday starting Dec. 6 and concluding Dec. 22.

Classes will be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Slim and trim, a water exercise class designed to firm and tone the body using water resistance is scheduled at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Class fee is $8.

Adult lessons are scheduled at 11 a.m. All levels of adults are accommodated from beginner to advanced. Effort is spent to develop swimming techniques and endurance. Class fee is $8.

Lap swimming for adults, swim and stay fit, continues from noon to 1 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. The pool will be closed Dec. 24 and 31.

Admission to lap swimming in the evening is by swim pass only. Noon lap swimmers may use the swim pass or single admission. Adult swim passes are 15 swims for $7.50. Individual swim is 75 cents.

Pool office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, noon to 1 p.m. and on the first and last day of a set of lessons prior to and during class time. Class registration may be completed and swim passes purchased at this time.

Swim passes may also be purchased at the main office, 200 Bernal Ave. or by mail. When completing any mail transactions, state what you wish, enclose a check for the proper amount with a self - addressed, stamped envelope, and mail to the Department of Human Resources, 200 Bernal Ave.

1 out of 3 employed in agriculture

One out of every three jobs in California depends directly or indirectly on California agriculture.

It is the state's number one industry, according to the Contra Costa County Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Division (CCCDA).

Other claims made by the CCCDA are: One of each three dollars spent by consumers goes for items that come from farms.

California grows over 40 per cent of the nation's vegetable, fruit and nut crops.

Food advertising in California amounts to over $125 million each year.

Glass manufacturers sell 1.3 billion jars with a value of $54 million to California food processors.

Printers provide one million miles of printed labels to canners and packagers in the state annually.

The plastic industry yearly supplies approximately 30 million pounds of plastic film for uses by California agribusiness.

Paper product manufacturers sell 400 million fiber boxes to California food handlers.

The steel industry annually sells 600,000 tons of tinplate for metal containers to California canners.

Foothill band wins new honor

PLEASANTON— The Foothill High School marching band has achieved another major parade award.

Traveling to the Western Band Review in Santa Ana, the Falcon bandsmen caught the eyes of the judges for a fifth - place award in their division. The Review attracted prep aggregations from throughout the state.

Father Time catches up

On Sports

Three sports figures who made an impact on American society announced their retirement this fall. It is rare when an athlete will make an unusual contribution beyond the parameters of his field. But here we have three, and each went out in rather characteristic fashion.

One is George Blanda, the antiquarian kicker, who departed kicking (he didn't want to be cut from the Oakland Raiders, at age 49, and threw a tantrum of sorts); another is Henry Aaron, who went out hitting, with a single in his last time at bat. The third is Muhammad Ali, whose leave - taking, like virtually every other aspect of his career, was a - swirl with controversy.

For none of the above is retirement now news. Blanda and Ali had retired before, while Aaron had been suggesting for the last couple years that the season coming up would be his last.

And all followed Dylan Thomas's advice, whether they were aware of it or not: "Do not go gently into that good night. Rage, rage against the dying of the light." Blanda was pushed out by a young man who was not yet born when Blanda turned pro with the Chicago Bears in 1950. When he found out what non - plans the Raiders had for him, he complained bitterly, kicked a locker, and, with a huff, left.

Aaron broke Babe Ruth's all - time home run record in April of 1974, at age 41. He hung on for two more years. For two reasons: One, the money was substantial. And two, he could still stroke, even if he was no longer a flash on the bases. (One can picture Henry Aaron, grown old and gray, hobbling up to the plate with a bat for a cane and lining one through the box).

Ali retired for as many reasons as there are facets of the man. Few felt that Ali would stay retired — even though he reiterated his feelings that, being a man of pacifism, fighting was no kinda life for him, same thing he said three fights ago. Added persuasion for his decision this time came when he found that, in his last bout, Ken Norton could hurt him without his hurting Norton.

In this "retirement" announcement, one sensed that even if it was not true in fact, it was true in spirit. The great Ali could no longer float like a butterfly, sting like a bee. No, what he did do was lumber like a moose, paw like a bear.

No matter. The curtain must fall for all of us, eventually.

Blanda, more than any athlete in history, demonstrated Picasso's dictum that "Youth has no age." Blanda retired in 1960 from the National Football League, but returned when the American Football League was organized.

How the pulse beat when in the waning, dusky moments of a football game, Blanda was called in to save the day. The camera zoomed in as the elderly, leathery Blanda pulled on his helmet and trotted onto the field to boot — and we knew he would — the winning field goal. He was for anyone beyond 35 our psychic Geritol.

Aaron and Ali meant something beyond age to us. What they dealt with was at the core of our nation — the division over race.

How threatened many seemed by Aaron's breaking of Babe Ruth's home run record. Somehow, Ruth's record stood for some as a symbol of white supremacy. As his pursuit of the 71 homers drew near, one word in Aaron's mail became more and more pervasive, the word "Nigger."

In the spring before he drove No. 715 over the wall, Aaron was assigned a body guard. Aaron dis-

Burke makes EB team

WALNUT CREEK — Granada linebacker Larry Burke, who made the second team last year, was one of six unanimous choices to the All-East Bay high school football team, the East Bay Prep Writers announced today.

Two other East Bay Athletic League players made the first team while six earned second team honors.

For Dublin's Jim Boulware, selected as a first - team running back, the honor was a vindication of sorts. Despite rolling up 1631 overall yards this season, Boulware had not been picked to the first team all-EBAL squad.

Granada's Vance Rushing, whose 1275 yards and 21 touchdowns made him the East Bay's leading scorer, was placed on the second team yesterday after EBAL coaches had picked him over Boulware for the fullback spot on the all-league team.

The other EBAL first - team selection, John Arnaudon of San Ramon, was chosen as a defensive back, and also made the second offensive team as a wide receiver after catching 37 passes for 601 yards this season.

Arnaudon's nine TD catches included two that Wolf coach Lyle Setencich called the best he'd ever seen.

Offensive tackle Bob Klein of Dublin, who opened many a hole for Dublin's bevy of quick backs; Wade Andrade of Livermore and Tony Trujillo of Foothill, who were at their best stopping the EBAL's top runners; San Ramon linebacker Tim Rosgen and Dublin defensive back Chuck Gangnuss, also a fine running threat, rounded out the league's second team picks.

Livermore place-kicker Charlie Bockover and Granada center Mike Nalty were also nominated for the award, but failed to garner enough votes for first or second team consideration.

Burke, a hard-nosed player with an early - warning system that zeroes in on the ball, joined fellow linebacker Danne Cole of Hayward, who intercepted seven passes and recovered two fumbles; and Salesian's 6-3, 205 - pound down lineman Bubba Thomas as a unanimous defensive selection.

On offense, Marina tackle Chris Miller, Campolindo wide receiver Jeff Roux and American place-kicker Simon Schafer were consensus picks.

Roux, playing with honorable mention quarterback Harley Miller in Campolindo's pass - oriented offense, caught 53 passes for 886 yards and 13 touchdowns this season while Schafer had field goals of 49 and 50 yards to win a game for the Eagles.

Players who helped vanquish Livermore and Granada from the North Coast Section AAAA play-offs were much in evidence.

Four-A champ Pinole Valley placed four players on the first team.

Wide receiver Brad Anderson, son of Oakland Raider trainer George Anderson, grabbed 36 passes for 636 yards and nine touchdowns off a mature receiving style while center Dan Gonzalez was all - Richmond Berkeley league for the second year in a row before annexing the all-East Bay mention.

Defensively, the Spartans put down lineman Kevin Ramsrud and back Mike Bradeson on the team.

Washington, which eliminated Livermore in overwhelming fashion before falling to PV and the wind last weekend, had one first team pick and two on the second.

Quarterback Mike Ricupito, who passed for 1080 yards off a 63.1 completion percentage, was a first - team offensive choice. His passes were good for 25 TD's over the course of the season.

On the second team were tight end Bill Morones, who caught 25 passes for 311 yads, and diminutive sophomore linebacker Tim King.

Dave Weber, Editor

There were no first team two-way picks, but three players made one from column A and one from column B.

In addition to Arnaudon, Clayton Valley's Rick Norwood and Antioch's Norm Bittner turned the trick. Norwood was a first-team down lineman and a second - team center while Bittner was a first-team guard and a second-team defensive lineman.

All-East Bay linebacker Larry Burke of Granada tackles Cal's Willie Huff in early EBAL game.

Larry's also scholar-athlete

SAN LEANDRO — During introductions for the Livermore-Granada football showdown last month, Matador linebacker Larry Burke was introduced as "The Animal."

Yesterday, the Football Foundation Hall of Fame joined those who disagree with the sobriquet as it picked Burke as its scholar-athlete Alameda County Lineman of the Year.

Pacific's David Mendez won the Back of the Year voting.

The award is selected on the basis of 40 per cent academic achievement, 40 per cent athletic excellence and 20 per cent extracurricular activities.

A player can't even be considered for the award without at least a 3.0 grade point average, but Burke hurdled that easily, scoring a 3.35 to date.

With football credentials that made him a unanimous choice in the all East Bay team named today, Burke also sports a list of extracurricular activities a mile long.

At Granada, he was involved in the Block G Club, cycling and backpacking. He's also a member of the Valley Christian Center and St. Charles Catholic Church.

Burke, along with Mendez and awardees from 13 other counties will be honored at a dinner Dec. 13 at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel. Four $1000 scholarships are awarded.

Warriors defeat San Antonio

OAKLAND — Yet another scorching night of shooting enabled the Golden State Warriors to hold off the San Antonio Spurs, 124-116, last night before an enraged gathering of 10,649 at the Coliseum Arena.

What had the fans almost as hot as the Warriors' 55 percent shooting was the officiating. Jack Madden and Hugh Evans awarded 31 free throws to San Antonio as opposed to 17 for Golden State.

"I was worried that the team was starting to get caught up with what the fans were doing," said Warrior coach Al Attles, who watched his team cling to its third win in a row.

Golden State scored just eight points in the last seven-and-half minutes, but Rick Barry, with 30, and Phil Smith, with 26, tallied enough to distract the Spurs from their usual game.

"We were worried about Rick, we were worried about Smith and the rest of the guys killed us," said Spur coach Doug Moe.

Jamaal Wilkes added 21 points for the Warriors while Larry Kenon had 26, Billy Paltz, 23 and George Gervin had 22 for the Spurs.

Paltz led the game with 13 rebounds while Clifford Ray had 11 for the Warriors. Barry had 10 assists while Charles Dudley had nine. George Johnson blocked three Spur shots.

Golden State moved the ball well in the early going to get inside and, almost as an afterthought, loosened up their outside shots.

cussed in a newspaper story the possibilities of being shot. He was fatalistic.

Aaron possessed a quiet dignity. For much of his career he was little celebrated. Once the nation's spotlight fell on him, however, he took advantage to speak out against the injustices of the black man in America. It was dignified but it was passionate.

Ali was a man well ahead of his time, as a fighter and as an individual. He could move like a middleweight and yet was 6-3 and weighed 220 pounds. He fought all the meanest sluggers of his day — Liston, Frazier, Foreman — and triumphed.

What got the goat of many, however, was his stand on politics and religion and race. After winning the heavyweight title in 1964 from Sonny Liston, Ali announced he was a Black Muslim, reputed then to be a black militant religious sect. Ali's stand on not stepping forward in the draft, soured others who, apparently, preferred he follow the hypocritical route of many other athletes who joined the military and then accepted showy sinecures.

Ali was unfairly stripped of his title and forced into a three and a half year retirement. His case went before the Supreme Court, which, in a 9-0 decision, upheld Ali's claim to status as a conscientious objector. A few short years later, most of the politicians who opposed Ali's stand, jumped on his philosophical bandwagon.

Meanwhile, Ali was becoming the most widely known athlete in the world. Rather, Ali was becoming the most widely known living person in the world.

Blanda, Aaron and Ali enriched our lives, for they did not simply survive, they prevailed.

Baptists dunked

Mike Faeth scored ten points and Joe Panella added nine to lead Vern's Enterprise to a 44-40 win over Trinity Baptist in a Valley Community Services District Basketball League game Tuesday night at Camp Parks.

Lew Patterson scored 13 points while teammate Gary Talli netted eight to lead the Baptists, who finished second to the Celtics in last year's Livermore D-league.

Gaffney EBAL's top gym hope

CONCORD — Joline Gaffney of Monte Vista leads the East Bay Athletic League's contigent in the North Coast Section gymnastics championship which begin at 7 p.m. tonight at Ygnacio Valley High School here.

Gaffney won the EBAL advanced all-around title with a 32.40 score that included three wins and a second in the individual events. Teammate Kathy Chapman, who finished second and won the bars at the EBAL meet, will also be a factor along with Granada's Janis Moody.

Moody won the 1974 Northern California beginners title and the 1975 intermediate Elite crown.

Cathy Lord, who took first in all-around in seven of eight meets this season, will lead the Mission Valley entrants. She finished second all-around in the league meet and had scores of 8.7 in floor exercise and 9.0 in vaulting.

Concord's Theresa Lynn may be the top Diablo Valley league competitor. She is an excellent dancer and is strong in both floor exercise and balance beam.

Hayward's Sandy Ballard, who took first in both dual meets she entered this year, is considered a legitimate threat to win the championship.

Susie Heilig of Berkeley, who won the FX, beam and bars (8.75) to take the Richmond-Berkeley all-around title with a 30:45 score. Jenny Thomas, also of the Yellowjackets, took the vaulting event and second in the all-around.

In the other divisions, Wendy Wills of Granada and June Gaffney of Monte Vista will top the EBAL contingent in the intermediates while Livermore's Rhonda Campbell and Cindy Sharp could do well in beginners.

It's a bad year for the farmers. Who needs to go out and buy pumpkinheads in an election year?

Mat cagers ranked

WALNUT CREEK — Granada High School is the only East Bay Athletic League basketball team ranked in the top 15 of the season's first basketball rankings, the East Bay Prep Writers announced this morning.

Amador Valley's perennial league champs were relegated to the honorable mention section after a 72-70 loss to 13th-ranked Hayward Tuesday night.

The Matadors, who whipped Fremont Kennedy in their season-opener Tuesday, face a tough test is one of the best non-league games to be found on the East Bay prep schedule tonight when they face third-rated Concord Northgate tonight in the Broncos' gym.

In other games involving EBAL teams tonight, California continues play at the Riverbank tourney, Mission San Jose at Livermore at 8 p.m., Dublin travels to Union City to meet James Logan at 7:30, Amador travels to Brentwood to meet Liberty at 8 p.m. while San Ramon hosts Richmond Harry Ells at 8 p.m.

Saturday, Foothill crosses the Bay Bridge to face San Bruno Crestmoor in an unusual 12 noon start while Monte Vista will host Washington at 8 p.m.

Baird stars in Poke loss

Bob Baird's pin of Kennedy's Steve Rodriguez was one of the few bright spots for Livermore yesterday as the Cowboys dropped a 41-24 non-league varsity wrestling scuffle to the Fremont school in Livermore.

After Baird's opening match win in the 95-pound division class, the 'Pokes didn't win another until Russ Wilson and Daryl Hansen defeated their opponents in the 175 and 191-pound classes.

Baird's pin came at 1:01 of the second round. It was the only time of the afternoon the 'Pokes were ahead of the Titans.

Livermore coach Eddie King remained optimistic after the meet, noting the 'Pokes lack of experience as a key to the loss. Last year's North Coast semi - finalist Naish Piazza didn't suit up for the match, still shaking off a minor injury picked up during football season.

"I expect to do better in league," King stated. "I've seen Kennedy before, and they're a good team. Don't count our chickens yet."

With five first-year varisty wrestlers and four freshmen on the mat yesterday, the more - experienced Titans scored four pins in rolling up a 41-8 lead before the Cowboys won the last three matches.

Ken Paraty pinned Livermore's Doug Arnew in the 120 pound class, Don Rodriguez stuck Johhny Gomez in the 127's, while Ed Fohvergne pinned Livermore's Bryon Bruce in the 133-pound class to lead the Titans in the early going.

Matt Morris followed with an 8-0 decision over Livermore's Todd Berg in the 138's, while the 'Pokes Jeff Newton finally broke the string with a 4-4 draw in the 145-pound class with Kennedy's Lister McCoy.

Wilson gave Livermore fans something to cheer about with an 11-0 win over Jim Howard. Wilson was moments away from pinning the Titan before time ran out.

Hansen had better luck for the 'Pokes, pinning Ken Smith just 1:04 into the first round for the second Livermore pin of the day.

Gary Tennyson won by forfeit over JFK's Frank Guziar, as Guziar took advantage of the new 18-point rule put in effect by the CIF this year. The rule states that no man can wrestle more than 18 matches (tournaments count no more than two) before the league season begins.

Kane gains All-America mention

NEW YORK — California tackle Ted Albrecht has become the third Bear to win Associated Press All-American honors in four years.

In addition, Tony Dorsett, Pittsburgh's record-breaking Heisman Trophy winner, heads up the AP's five-man backfield for 1976.

Rick Kane of San Jose State, former Amador Valley running back, made the team as a honorable mention pick.

Joining Dorsett and pass-happy quarterback Tommy Kramer of Rice on the offensive unit are running backs Ricky Bell of Southern California, Rob Lytle of Michigan and Terry Miller of Oklahoma State. It was considered impossible to choose among Bell, Lytle and Miller.

The AP All-America team will be seen on Bob Hope's Comedy Christmas Special on NBC-TV, Monday, Dec. 13, from 8:30-10 p.m., EST.

Another Northern California standout named to the team ws Santa Rosa's Jerry Robinson, a UCLA linebacker and the only All-American sophomore this year.

Albrecht, named a guard on the AP team, follows in the steps of quarterback Steve Bartkowski and running back Chuck Munsey as recent Cal All-Americans.

Dorsett made first team All-America in 1973 — the first freshman so honored in 29 years — third team in 1974 and second team a year ago. But the only 1975 repeaters on the first unit are Bell and split end Larry Seivers of Tennessee.

Joining Seivers at end is Michigan's Jim Smith, a clutch receiver and shifty kick returner.

GS continues win streak

But the Spurs' quick - handed defense forced 13 first - half turnovers by the Warriors, nine of which resulted in burns.

At the offensive end, San Antonio veteran center Billy Paultz, despite his awkward appearance, provided learned possession ball and precision passes to nearly equalize the Warriors' torrid 61 percent halftime shooting percentage.

In fact, a steal by Kenon and a blocked shot by George Gervin set off a 9-2 Spur spurt that gave San Antiono a seven - point lead with 3:02 to go in the first quarter.

The Warriors' shooting attack — including the unlikely sight of Clifford Ray letting fly from out high — countered with a 10-1 burst.

That enabled Golden State to regain the lead briefly just before the quarter on a leaning left-hander around Kenon and Charles Dudley.

The Hoppers' penchant for stirring up a game was in evidence again as he fed off for six assists in the second quarter alone.

For awhile in that period, the Warriors' regained the flair that has been their trademark in recent years. Barry, shooting and driving like the Golden Prince of Oulde, canned 16 points as Golden State seldom had to shoot from farther than six feet.

Not to say they didn't shoot outside. They just didn't have to.

Ray pulled more suprises out of his hat, driving ala a slender forward whille Phil Smith shook lose along the base line for a crisp stuff.

Yet San Antonio and tied the score as late as the 3:34 to play mark. Then came eight straight points by Barry to put the Warriors up, 63-59 at the half.

Before the game, the Warriors activated forward Dwight Davis, who had missed the first 19 games with an injured hamstring, and waived rookie guard Marshall Rogers, the leading scorer in college basketball a year ago. Ironically, Rogers' wife had planned to move to the Bay Area this weekend.

MV tops Swett

DANVILLE — Monte Vista High School, imploying a breakaway-type offense to go with an occasional in-bounds press, defeated John Swett, 62-44 here last night in a non-league basketball game.

With the victory, MV moved to 2-0. Individually the Mustangs' Kevin Jones and Mike Tierney led with 12 and 11 points respectively. Swett was led by Keith Sausedo with 14 points.

Monte Vista, in jumping to a 31-20 halftime advantage, imployed a very outstanding half-court press which led to numerous turnovers.

Pinole gridders tops

College Park High School learned its not how you play, but who you play and Livermore learned it's not who you beat, but how many times you get beat, when the East Bay Prep Writers released their final football rankings of the season this morning.

The Falcons, whose league opted out of the North Coast Section AAA play-offs in favor of its own Turkey Bowl game this season, picked up four first place votes, but fell 12 points behind Pinole Valley in the final poll.

While College Park was beating Mt. Diablo for the second time this season, 20-15, the Spartans wrapped up the AAAA title with a 13-6 win over Fremont Washington amidst a furiously swirling wind at Diablo Valley College.

Livermore, meanwhile, finished behind rival Granada in the poll, despite a 6-3 win over the Matadors in the final East Bay Athletic League game of the season.

But the Cowboys had lost to Manteca in an inter - sectional match-up and to EBAL foes San Ramon and Amador Valley, before being shellacked, 48-20, by Washington in the first round of the North Coast play-offs.

Granada lost just three times.

A missed PAT and a defensive foul-up cost them their EBAL opener with San Ramon and the loss to Livermore and a horrendous 42-13 drubbing at the hands of the top-ranked Spartans followed.

Pinole's right to the top spot is justified by two straight AAAA crowns, but the Falcons must be wondering how the writers would have voted if they, too, had been allowed to participate in the North Coast tourney by the Diablo Valley Athletic League.

Washington, Livermore's conqueror, ended up in fifth place.

Undefeated Piedmont finished in third, bringing about a change in the poll format for next season.

With the Highlanders winning all 11 of their games, sweeping to the new Alameda County Athletic League championship and copping the AA title, it seemed to the EBPW that is was unfair for the Clan to be placed below two teams that had been defeated at least once.

So, next season, there will be two top tens, one for the AAAA division, and one for the AA division, instead of the present top-15 set-up.

EAST BAY FOOTBALL POLL

The top 15, with record, first-place votes in parentheses, total points and placing last week:

1. Pinole Vly (5)	9-2-1	131	2
2. Coll Prk (4)	9-1	119	1
3. Piedmont	11-0	111	3
4. Berkeley	6-2-1	103	6
5. Washington	9-3	92	9
6. Hayward	9-1	86	5
7. Campolindo	8-2	79	4
8. Salesian	9-2	75	7
9. Kennedy-R	8-2	72	8
10. Granada	8-3	43	t11
11. Mt. Diablo	7-3-1	38	14
12. Pittsburg	7-3	27	10
13. John Swett	8-1	26	hm
14. Livermore	7-4	23	15

HONORABLE MENTION — Clayton Valley 6-3; Alhambra 7-3; Albany 7-2; Skyline 5-4; Castlemont 5-4; San Ramon 6-4; Mission San Jose 6-3-1; Marina 7-3.

HERE'S "THE AN$WER."

You asked for a car to meet today's needs. You got it. "The Answer." A special Corolla from Toyota. A car built Toyota tough to meet the demands for high gas mileage and a low price. That's "The Answer." High mileage and the lowest price in America. Based on a comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail prices, not including tax, license, transportation charges, emission, and optional equipment. Lowest priced car in America. That's "The Answer." A new car that costs less than many used cars. And "The Answer" gives you something no one else can—unbeatable Toyota toughness at an unbeatable tough price. High gas mileage. That's "The Answer." Gas mileage few can match. Mileage you expect from Toyota. In 1977 EPA tests "The Answer" got 38 mpg on the highway, 26 in the city. These ratings with a 1.6 liter engine are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

How did Toyota come up with "The Answer"? We started with the durable, proven Corolla and eliminated some of the luxury features. But we didn't touch the car's quality. You'll still find things like welded unitized-body construction, steel guard door reenforcements and McPherson Strut front suspension. This special car became "The Answer." A car that's inexpensive, not cheap. A car that carefully retains the toughness that's a part of the Toyota tradition. See your Toyota dealer today. He's the only one who can show you "The Answer."

Taxes anyone?

Assemblyman Floyd Mori is doing it.

A property owner in Alamo wants in on the act. A state senator hopes to convince the governor who is already talking about "convincing some other people." No question about it, 1976 is the year for "Property Tax Relief."

All of which sounds very encouraging ... for those of us who must shell out up to $1000 on Dec. 10, and then another $1000 or so in four months, just for the privilege of living in our own home. Spiraling taxes on private dwellings are, in our opinion, the most regressive form of raising money to support government.

But while irate homeowners, members of the State Legislature and even the governor himself might talk bravely of "getting meaningful property tax relief," those on the paying end should cast a cautious eye on their methods.

For if they really lower, or shift, the tax on residential properties, from whence will that lost revenue now come? "From an increase in the state income tax," is one popular choice. "From higher sales taxes," is another.

"But let's face it," Supervisor - elect Valerie Raymond cautioned her own taxpayer audience earlier in the week, "it will still be the middle income family that pays."

Ah yes. The political winds that blow our tax burdens this way and that still pile up the inevitable drift against the fence of "middle income homeowner." And that's us, folks.

Tax shifting isn't going to save us a dime. Governmental economy would! Stiffening up the Sacramento backbone against this and that give - away. Passing legislation that would actually cut back spending, for a change. Now there's real property tax relief for you!

FOCUS/Murray decision

Picking a school

Murray School District trustees are apparently set to decide what school will be converted to seventh-eighth grade use at Monday night's meeting.

And while this decision is being mulled in their respective minds for the final times, the five-member board is also seriously considering whether to renew the contract of Superintendent Donald Williams.

The latter situation is fraught with intangibles, some tied to Dr. Williams' health condition and others to how trustees perceive his job performance.

December 15 is the deadline for notifying a superintendent of a board's decision regarding his contract.

But the situation that has stirred by far the most comment has been the matter of conversion.

Because of this, one community group formed (Residents-In-Action) and dozens of meetings were held over the past six months, including those of the Citizens Advisory Committee, setup by the board.

Out of this has come surveys and studies, charges and countercharges.

Whoever thought the citizens of Dublin were an unresponsive lot, immune to ever being revived, never reckoned with this school conversion-status quo issue.

We believe this issue, more than any other in recent years, has shown once again that parents in the Murray district or any school district will react long and loud when the subject involves their children, changes in enrollment makeup and/or busing.

While the Murray board has already indicated it plans to convert a school, the decision to be made now is A) what school and B) when.

The conversion choices are, but not necessarily in order of anyone's preference, Dublin, Frederiksen, Murray and Fallon.

The Citizens Advisory Committee has recommended Dublin for conversion. Long before that choice was made public the RIA marshalled their forces in opposition. This group has labored long and hard in opposing conversion and busing of elementary-age children.

Jerry errington and Lenore Holmes and all other organizers of RIA are to be commended for their interest not only in Dublin School but the district.

But a decision must be made and Murray trustees realize it must come now.

It is difficult to determine if Dublin will be the school earmarked for conversion. As noted previously, it is the recommended choice of the CAC.

From this writer's standpoint, the Dublin School would be the best choice. However, location aside, one must deal with the problem of reassigning large numbers of K-6 children.

The latter is difficult to reconcile but, presumably, the board has accomplished this and stands ready to make a decision Monday.

round the town

Did you know that the people who bring us McDonald's Hamburgers spend more money to promote their product than does the nation - wide chain of Sears department stores?

I pass along this bit of information so that you may share with me a fact of American life which has become all too clear in recent years . . . We are a people hung up on our stomach!

You need only to turn on the tube to be aware of the considerable advertising impetus being provided for such as Taco Bell, Hamburger King, Straw Hat Pizza and, of course, the omni - present McDonald's. Watching those plugs would make one believe that feeding the human beast is our number - one priority. Which of course it is.

Always has been, if my grammar school history lesson was on target. Caesar killed the Gauls, Charlemagne threw his weight around with the Franks, Joseph led his people across the desert . . . it was all in pursuit of a better spot from which to acquire a Jumbo Jack burger, with onions.

Had today's titans of the tortilla, these paragons of the pizza been around a few thousand years ago, who is to say what shifts in the course of civilized man would have resulted? Instead of marching on England (which still serves a very heavy hamburger) William the Conqueror would surely have chosen to invade Hollywood and Vine, where some of the world's best - known, and quickest, dispensers of food are clustered.

Without these hamburger havens, these instant answers to the cry of the American belly, our life style would undergo shocking change. If there were no Pizza Hut there could be no Little League! Abolish McDonald's and you wipe out the ability of Jaycee Wives to do their community thing! . . . every Tuesday during dinner hour.

The mind boggles at the thought of American homemakers (that's an old - fashioned term meaning "spouse of male partner") being tied down to the hot kitchen, laboring over some dumb lamb stew, with fresh carrots, while the community cries out for saving from this - and - that.

Surely, history will some day record that the advent of Colonel Sander's Kentucky Fried Chicken also marked the true beginning of Women's Lib . . . for what woman can be liberated before she is first freed from the rigors of deep - fried breasts of poultry, with fresh - baked biscuits?

Without the Quick Grits Stop in Plains, Rosalynn Carter would never have been able to find time to carry the Jimmy Carter message across the land . . and without Rosalynn's help, surely one or more of those tight state races would have swung over to Jerry and Betty Ford. A nation's course was set, thanks to Quick Grits.

No man can be a patriot on an empty stomach. Napoleon saw it more like "we can't expect the troops to march all the way to Moscow when there isn't a single Taco Bell along the whole blessed route." Empty stomachs have always been the chief concern of generals, kings and presidents. A few politicians too.

"I want there to be no peasant in my realm so poor that he will not have a chicken in his pot every Sunday." HenryIV of France said that. It was a great line. Helped to get a latter - day president of these United States elected to office. Study the history of food - to - go and you study the history of mankind. Dogkind, also. I am reliably informed (by the California Beef Council, no less) than it was in the early 1900's, during a cold, wet baseball game at New York Polo Grounds when an enterprising concessioneer by name of Harry Stevens was inspired to offer the fans a hot dachshund sausage on a warmed bun. With mustard.

"Get your dachshund sausage on a bun while they're hot!" he hollered, over and over. Time he blurted out that long phrase, over and over, the hungry fan had lost interes. It was only when Mr. Stevens abbreviated his pitch to "HOT DOGS!" that he won the attention of those New York fans, and thereby launched one of the nation's very first quickie - food chains.

They have flourished ever since, and the American economy has never been the same. So too for the American stomach. In some distant era, historians will open one of us up. Peer into Homo Sapien Alimentary Canal. Find the remains of all that pizza, all those Big Macs and Hot Dogs. Enough fried chicken grease to start a fire. Or a war.

I think it was Patrick Henry who said something about "a nation being ready TO GO!" Now I wonder if he really had in mind to set up the country's first chain of trot - in dineries.

Letters to the Times

Not too salty

Editor, The Times:

In general, pay increases in my profession ranged from a 6% figure for a not very productive employee to a 9.5% figure for an above average employee ...

Apparently in Pleasanton, our School Board refuses to acknowledge that inflation touches teachers and their families, too. Also, the offers from the school board carry a clear implication that teachers are lucky to receive any increase at all. The unilateral punishments and threats used against teachers are unmistakable signs of an incredibly native attitude, bordering on contempt ...

... our youth are constantly exposed to teachers as human beings with personal philosophies which are transmi ed in so many ways. This exposure is in many cases an even more effective influence on the values our young people choose than exposure to their parents ...

In refusing to offer just and fair pay program for teacher, we are downgrading the awesome responsibility we place in their hands. They are professionals and not babysitters. Continual downgrading, abuse and lack of encouragement will eventually drive away the talented and dedicated teachers we now have ...

The School Board has an opportunity to take a positive step by offering real and concrete ways of both maintaining the level of excellence we are fortunate to enjoy, and of increasing teacher effectiveness through encouragement and flexibility to continue their training. A realistic and just wage in today's world would do this. Another vital element toward this end would be a change of attitude on the part of administrator based upon an honest appraisal of the role teachers play in the lives of those in their charge. I do not think we can afford not to search for a better way to keep and improve the backbone of teaching: our teachers.

Teachers pay

Editor, The Times:

Congratulations LAVWMA! You won one out of three by scare tactics, threats of heavy fines, distortions and mis-representation. In Pleasanton, you succeeded in numbing and polluting our brains enough to cause our chickens to vote for Colonel Sander's ... Now with a little organized opposition and the true facts brought into focus, the vote will be different next time!

Pleasanton has no ultimatum to clean up our effluent, so we are not threatened with any fines.

LAVWMA says the effluent is too salty, not so. ... the 300 acre green belt on both sides of 680 Freeway between Bernal and Sunol Blvd. is living proof that the water is not too salty. ... So don't tell me that water is too salty. Those trees were planted about 30 years ago, and unless they developed a gluttonous appetite for salt early in life, they would have been dead decades ago. But, of course, the trees and grass don't know about all that salt and just keep growing, making food for a large herd of cattle creating a natural environment for several species of water birds that stay year around ... rabbits, pheasants, migratory geese and ducks ... This green belt also re-generates our yellow polluted air and gives back new oxygen.

Now bear in mind the water that makes all this possible, is what LAVWMA proposes to have us do away with. By spending 29 million dollars, we can buy pumps and pipes and get it out of here. Oh, I almost forgot, it's only the water that leaves the valley; the part that smells stays here!

I call attention to the Livermore Plant that is capable of irrigating 800 acres, and one farmer does buy enough of their effluent to irrigate 100 acres of different crops ... This practice has been going on 10 years; now it's my understanding that they want to triple the price of the water to about $60 per acre foot, while Zone 7 is selling water to farmers for $18 per acre foot.

SECRECY! - Two views

A new attempt to curtain the selection processes of local government in the filling of vacancies by appointment to boards of supervisors, city council and local boards and commissions will be made in the forthcoming legislative session next month.

This was made clear in a resolution adopted by the League of California Cities at its convention in San Diego in October. Directed at amending the Ralph Brown Public Meetings Act, it declared the provisions barring executive sessions for the purpose of filling appointive vacancies "does not best serve the public interest."

The reasoning expressed by resolution was "that free and open discussions concerning the character and qualifications of persons to be appointed ... cannot be undertaken in a public forum thus precluding the City Councils from a full knowledge of their appointees upon whom they rely for advice and recommenation..."

Their resolution was aimed specifically at Government Code Section 54957 which permits executive sessions to consider employment of personnel but provides employees do not include persons to be appointed to boards and commissions or vacancies on the legislative body.

That provision was placed in the law in 1975 by Senator George Moscone, since elected Mayor of San Francisco. It was part of a package of reforms dealing with public records and meetings authored by Moscone to make government more accessible to the citizens. His legislation was strongly backed by the California Newspaper Publishers Association and the California Trial Lawyers.

Not surprisingly, the provision which the League wants repealed was opposed by its representatives at the time of passage.

Its concern, then and now, is based upon the contention that many citizens who would serve on various boards are not willing to subject themselves to public questioning and the possible embarassment of being known to be a candidate but not being selected. It is argued that the provision deprives the public of the services of the "most desirable."

That there is another side to those arguments was evident at the League's convention where adoption of the resolution was by no means unanimous.

It was also evident at the time of enactment of the legislation for some see no reason for executive sessions in the hiring of employees, let alone the appointment of officials.

That view contends that if full disclosures are necessary for elective officials the same should be demanded of those hired to act for them.

Those who aspire to elective office must run the gamut of campaign forums and submit to questioning by the public as to their qualifications as well as submit detailed reports of their financial holdings and campaign contributions. They must also run the risk of being rejected by the voters.

Those who wish to serve the public in positions to be gained through appointment rather than election deserve at least equal attention, for once installed they hold the powers delegated to them by the elected officials.

The same type of opposition was raised at the time laws were enacted to require full disclosure of financial interests by public officials. Many argued that it would discourage the most capable citizens from serving. To some extent that may have been the effect but as others have observed "it certainly will discourage those in office from becoming suddenly rich."

Ron McNicoll

The Pleasanton City Council met the letter of the Brown Act again Monday, but violated its spirit. Mayor Robert Philcox refused to recognize the public during the council's discussion of how to spend $90,000 or more of windfall tax revenue. Money was not the only issue before the council : there was yet another modification to the controversial structuring of the Department of Public Safety's fire department.

The firemen had their say, but it was relayed through City Manager Bill Edgar. Neither the public nor the employees had a direct say to the council. This happened one week after the mayor said that he would not cut off anyone at a public hearing because it was the public's only "shot at" an issue. While it's true that only zoning, general plan and tax rate setting matters require public hearings, the mayor's action Monday, with the acquiescence of the council, flies in the face of their declared intention to hear out the public.

Growth!

Growing pains hit hardest in the pocketbook. San Ramon Valley residents have learned that lesson in the past week. Now they're trying to ease the harsh realities.

At the southern end of that narrow corridor stretching between Walnut Creek and Dublin lies a community on the make.

San Ramon is the darling of developers — one of the remaining spots in the East Bay where there's room and legal sanction to build homes.

Right now 6,000 new dwellings are on the drawing board. More will follow.

This rankles conservation elements who fear that orchards and foothills will be wallpapered with housing tracts.

Now their concern is spreading to homeowners.

The rush to live in pristine seclusion is creating headaches. Problem A is the San Ramon Valley school situation. There aren't enough classrooms to handle an estimated increase of 6,000 students by 1982.

Problem B is property taxes, which, if they keep climbing, may alleviate Problem A since few people will be able to afford their homes.

School officials are already investigating solutions to their problem. Taxpayers are growling about theirs. It'll be a long time, however, before either situation is settled.

San Ramon school district needs $7.5 million to furnish facilities in the face of a student boom. There is talk of a bond election to raise funds. The district just finished with an $11 million bond sale, however for previously planned construction.

There are harsher alternatives, pursuit of a no growth policy for San Ramon Valley, among them. Some people are even suggesting a sale of district property for condominium development. That would be ironic since it's the housing boom that has caused classroom crowding in the first place.

A school district committee is investigating expansion fund alternatives. An answer is needed quickly. Estimates are that the district won't have enough money to house the 1978 student population.

As for the taxpayers, well, they'd like a solution to their woes even sooner. Some San Ramon Valley residents are moving out because the tax bill is just too steep.

Assessed valuation for the region went up 25 per cent last year, and ranged from 25 to 70 per cent this year. It' going up again in 1977.

The county assessor blames the increase on demand for those four and five bedroom suburban palaces. Housing prices are skyrocketing as people rush to the suburbs. Valuations climb along with those prices. San Ramon Valley is hit harder by the tax man than any other region in Contra Costa County, according to the assessor. Why? It's the prime housing area.

Homeowners are reacting angrily to the crunch. In Danville they had a property tax protest meeting last night. Another is scheduled next week.

At the school district, special budget workships were instituted by public demand since schools take the biggest bite in the tax dollar.

Workshops were poorly attended. But now, with the latest outcries against property taxes, there should be renewed interest in education financing.

Homeowners are desperate for a tax break. No one has offered a solution yet. Politicians speak to the issue, but a legal overhaul of property taxes could be eons away.

Perhaps the answer is growth control. In the past it was a tool of environmentalists.

These days, when growing pains hurt in the wallet, it could become the alternative for anyone with a tax bill to pay.

"Being in women's fashion designing, what do you see happening to me when Mrs. Carter is in the White House?"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have always thought that gout was caused by eating too much meat. Is it just as important to avoid other proteins? Should salicyclates such as aspirin be avoided while taking Colbenamide for control? Is baking soda of any value in reducing uric acid in the blood?

DEAR READER — Eating protein foods including meat does not cause gout. That is a common misconception. It is caused by an overproduction of uric acid by your own cells, not by what you eat. A high uric acid level in the blood may lead to acute attacks of gout or a slower more insidious change causing gouty arthritis.

Today we have three types of medicines used to treat gout. One of these is used to relieve the acute painful attack, colchicine — and we have used it for ages. Other medicines are used to increase the filtration of excess uric acid out of the body through the kidneys. The medicine you are taking is a combination of these two. The third medicine, allopurinol (Zyloprim) acts at the cellular level to prevent your own cells from producing too much uric acid.

The combinations of these medicines have made diets in the control of gout almost obsolete. They have also completely changed the outlook for patients with gout as long as they follow their doctor's treatment plan.

Because heart disease is a common complication of gout I do believe that gout patients should be on a diet low in fat and cholesterol and limited sufficiently in calories to eliminate or prevent obesity. Avoid crash weight losing efforts. This often breaks down body cells and releases excess amounts of uric acid and can cause an acute painful attack of gout.

Salicylates have a variable effect on uric acid depending upon how much you take. At one time they were used to eliminate uric acid but they are not used for that purpose anymore. If a person with gout is controlled by a satisfactory medical program taking aspirin for ordinary aches or pains will not be harmful. Aspirin should not be used with an acute painful attack of gout. Aspirin has often been implicated in causing acute attacks of gout but I don't think you need worry about that if you are taking medicine to control gout as in your case.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid, to give you more information on the problem. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Some doctors do try to keep the urine alkaline when they are giving medicines to flush out lots of uric acid. Sodium bicarbonate is sometimes used for this purpose. I do not think regular use of sodium bicarbonate for any purpose is advisable. You can avoid this problem by using medicines such as Zyloprim that prevents the overproduction of uric acid in the first place.

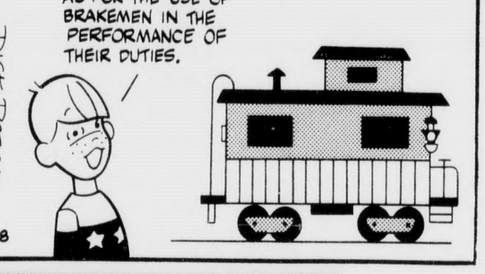
The medicine you are taking does enhance flushing uric acid out of the body through the kidneys. To help you protect your kidneys and avoid any increased chance of kidney stones I do think you should drink plenty of fluids. Drink enough to insure a generous flow of urine that appears light in color, meaning it is dilute. The amount of urine you pass is the proper indication of whether or not you are getting enough fluids.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DOES A FREIGHT TRAIN HAVE A CABOOSE?"

TRENT RYNDERS
GODFREY, IL

A. THE CABOOSE SERVES AS THE TRAIN'S OFFICE FOR KEEPING RECORDS OF THE FREIGHT, AS WELL AS FOR THE USE OF BRAKEMEN IN THE PERFORMANCE OF THEIR DUTIES.



Nearly every boy and girl is familiar with the brightly colored caboose that marks the end of every freight train.

This little car is an office on wheels for the freight conductor. Here he keeps his records of what each freight car contains, and where to drop off cars and pick up other cars.

The caboose also serves as a "home" for the train's crew. There are seats, a table, a stove for cooking, and bunks to sleep in.

On top of the caboose is a little watchtower which trainmen call the "crow's nest." A trainman called the brakeman sits in the tower and looks out over the cars to see that the train is running smoothly.

To talk with the engineer in the locomotive at the front of the train, the brakeman uses a two-way radio that looks like a telephone.

Before the train leaves the yard, the brakeman hangs signal lanterns on the rear of the caboose and the long string of freight cars officially becomes a train.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

astrograph

For Friday, Dec. 3, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a little too careless with possessions and resources today. Loss is possible through someone in whom you misplaced your trust.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's advisable to rely more on yourself than upon others today. People you think are firmly in your corner could suddenly change sides.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take care what you volunteer today. Someone could craftily switch an insoluble problem to you and you'd wind up holding the bag.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have a friend who generally fares well in risky ventures, don't throw in with him today. His luck could abandon him.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Goals are destined to elude you today, mainly because the methods you use to attain them are erratic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Steer clear of pushing plans through impulsively today. It will be far better to think things out and avoid any actions you feel are premature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Carelessness today could maneuver you so as you'd have to pay for another's mistakes. Weigh the difference between compassion and foolishness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One-to-one relationships will be your stumbling block today. The problem could rest with your failure to spell out the ground rules.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your attention span is very short today. As a result, problems will result that you normally wouldn't anticipate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on your guard in social situations today. Complications arise either from the way friends handle you or the way you deal with them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may try to manage too closely the affairs of one who trusts you for guidance. Your advice could hinder rather than help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It is wise to heed the words of those who you feel have the knowledge and substance to advise you. Be sure, however, you're not just being swayed by a glib tongue.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand from that 1930 final match may well be called a mystery hand. The bidding in the box is when Lightner sat South and Culbertson North. It is rather normal bidding and would probably be duplicated in a modern match.

Langdon opened the four of hearts. Dummy's nine forced East's queen. Today, more than 45 years later, Jacoby, who sat East, can't remember how the play went, but it was one of those hands where the conservative Lightner played safe and scored his three notrump.

At the other table, Hal Sims in the North seat rebid two notrump over his partner's one-spade response. Langdon went to three spades, but Sims rebid to three notrump and played it there.

East opened the deuce of clubs and Sims managed to collect 11 tricks.

Where does the mystery come in? Sims was a great dummy player, but neither of us can find any way that he managed to get that 11th trick.

Ten tricks yes. That 11th really must have required some help from the defenders.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know what the rule about revokes is. We will answer part of this today and the rest tomorrow.

A revoke occurs when a player who has a card or cards in a suit that he should play, plays a card in some other suit. It becomes established when he or his partner plays to the next trick. The penalty for a revoke is two tricks, but only including the revoking and later tricks. Thus, you cannot lose a trick previously taken if you revoke.

DUBLIN — Herb E. Ellingwood, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, will be the speaker for the monthly dinner meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship on Dec. 6 at 7:15 p.m. at Howard Johnson's, 680 Regional St.

He served as the Legal Affairs Secretary to Governor Ronald Reagan, and has been outstanding in law enforcement work and in his personal ministry to others. For reservations call Ed Hutka at 447-3235.

Famed Statue visits here

PLEASANTON — St. Augustine's Church, 900 East Angela St., will receive the famous international pilgrim statue of Our Lady of Fatima on Tuesday, Dec. 14 at 8:30 a.m. at which time a Mass will be offered. A ten hour vigil will follow, closing with rosary, procession, benediction and investure of the brown scapular at 7:30 p.m.

Accompanying the statue, and preaching the Fatima message of "Prayer and Penance" for peace, is the Rev. George Shipman of Our Lady of Peace Church, Santa Clara. In Fatima, Portugal, in 1917, three children witnessed a series of apparitions of Mary, the mother of Jesus. The message given was that atheistic Russia would be converted to God if enough prayers and penance were given to that end. If not, Russia would spread her errors throughout the world, along with wars and persecution of the church.

This statue, carved by Jose Thedim, was blessed by Pope Pius XII, and was sent by him to pilgrimage throughout the world since 1947. The five - foot statue was carved of cedar, under the direction of Sister Lucia, the only survivor of the three children who witnessed the 1917 apparition nar Fatima, Portugal.

The statue figured in diplomacy between nations, when in 1947 the Franco - Spanish border was opened for the statue to cross over, the border having been officially closed since the Spanish civil war. From that day, diplomatic relations were opened between the two countries, and have continued since.

Resurrection progressive dinner

DUBLIN — Resurrection Lutheran Church, 7557 Amador Valley Blvd., is staging its annual Progressive Dinner on Dec. 5.

Resurrection members have long recognized this as "the" social event of the church year. Indeed, those not attending will be talked about!

The evening begins at 5 p.m. with a general gathering for hors d'oeuvres at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Wittrock, 1822 Tanglewood, Pleasanton. Guests will then disperse to the homes of various hosts for the entree. All will finally meet at the church for dessert and an old - fashioned Christmas Carol Sing. Mrs. Ronald Nelson, 829-0758, is in charge of planning the event.

Money for heifers

LIVERMORE — The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church has completed a successful mission project this year by raising $6000 for Heifer Project International.

Heifer Project, is a non-sectarian charity which has helped people throughout the world to become self-sufficient by supplying them with breeding animals to boost food production for the past 28 years.

Tom and Henrietta Greer contributed two heifers and the congregation held a fun-filled Halloween Carnival/Holiday Bazaar which raised over $1500. The rest of the $6000 was by direct do..ations by members of the congregation.

Dick Giroux, right, chairman for the Heifer Project for the First Presbyterian Church of Livermore presents a check for $5000 to Bill Beck, regional representative for Heifer Project International. Looking on is the Rev. Bill Nebo, Senior Pastor of the First Presby terian Church.

Our Lady of Fatima

Adult enrichment

DUBLIN — The Adult Enrichment "Challenge" program of John Knox United Presbyterian Church in Dublin has a series of Sunday morning adult studies this fall including a new course on South Africa and the church's mission being taught by Chaplain (Lt. Col. Rt.) James Smith Griffes.

The purpose of this course, related to the Sunday morning Church and World Forum which meets at 9 a.m. each Sunday, is to discuss major issues of the Christian faith, and to gain insight into what is really happening today in South Africa.

Advent Festival

LIVERMORE — Beginning at noon on Sunday, Dec. 5, the church family is invited to participate in an Advent Festival at the First Presbyterian Church of Livermore.

This will provide for an opportunity to prepare for the "Coming of our Lord" through learning, creating and celebration. Everyone is asked to bring a bag lunch with cookies to share; a beverage will be provided.

There will be a variety of activities — something for everyone. Nursery care for toddlers and infants will be available.

Donna Calabrese and Harold Rogers practice with puppets for the Christmas Closet Boutique presented by St. Clare's Episcopal Church on Saturday, Dec. 4 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be gifts for sale, and many fun activities for the children, and a visit from Santa!

Christmas closet

PLEASANTON — St. Clare's Episcopal Church will hold their Christmas Closet Boutique on Saturday, Dec. 4, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 339 Rose Ave.

Gifts for sale will include baked goods, jellies, jams, candies and cookies. There will be handmade items and attic treasures.

For the children, Santa will be there to be photographed and there will be many activities for the children to participate in.

Lunch and snacks will be available to purchase, and door prizes will be given. There will be live music provided all day by the Topaz band.

Afterlife series

PLEASANTON — Deacon Greg Nowacki, of St. Augustine's Church, will offer a series of lectures on "Death, Dying, Afterlife and Care for the Dying" from the first week of Lent, to continue into the Easter season.

The series will follow the lecture - discussion format, but guest speakers are also being enlisted for some of the lectures.

This should prove to be a most interesting series, filling a need for more information and discussion in this area.

This series will be offered Tuesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. and on Thursday mornings at 9:30 a.m.

Income tax course set by Amador

PLEASANTON— Amador Valley Adult Education will offer a course on income tax preparation starting Tuesdyay, Dec. 7.

Persons interested in learning about the federal tax structure, taxable income. allowable deductions, capital gains, business and retail income, depreciation, tax shelters, tax-free income and how to prepare individual tax returns are encouraged to signup for the course.

Signups will be taken the first night of the course at Amador Valley High School. The class will be held every Tuesday evening from 7 to 10 in Room F-10.

For further information, contact the Adult Education office at 462-5500 Monday through Friday from 8 to 4.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

During the Revolutionary War, Thomas Jefferson led the fight in the Virginia legislature to eliminate feudal inheritance practices of "primogeniture and entail." The first, which by the oldest son in a family inherited the entire estate. The second prevented an estate to be sued sell in portions. Both practices contributed to the continued indebtedness of the large property holders to British merchants. The World Almanac notes that as a result of these changes, women were also allowed to inherit property.
